OVERVIEW

The award will recognise journalists who have contributed the best work on IT Journalism within a 12-month period.

Their journalism will have broadened community understanding of IT issues and/or events and explained or examined related policies, technologies, trends and/or personnel in their chosen medium.

The winning journalist will receive a cash prize of $10,000 and have their name inscribed on the honour board permanently displayed at the National Press Club of Australia.

The Award is proudly supported by ASG.

OBJECTIVES

To facilitate the recognition of and further promote quality journalism and media production on topics that are primarily concerned with or related to IT.

To encourage broader media coverage and documentaries on IT issues.

ELIGIBILITY AND GUIDELINES

The award is open to all journalists who will have resided in Australia and worked as journalists between 1st November 2021 to 31st October 2022.

Entries will only be accepted for work published or broadcast between 1st November 2021 to 31st October 2022.

Submitted work must be the original work of the applicant.

Applicants must have at least 2 years' experience in journalism.

Joint applications will be accepted (NB: Prizes will be split).

Entries can be submitted in any medium and should be accompanied by a brief written statement backgrounding the submission and a current CV of the applicant.

Applicants who have received any financial or in kind sponsorship from an IT sector corporation in relation to their entry must declare details and any conflict of interest.

Submissions may be in any media form and the topics may include:

- IT leaders
- Cyber security
- IT innovation and trends
- IT technology issues – government and business
- IT technology issues – consumer
- Safeguarding data

Entries should be accompanied by a brief written statement backgrounding the submission and a current CV of the applicant.

Submissions should be no more than 3 articles showcasing the journalist's best work. CV, background statement and articles should all be collated in one document.

Awards submissions are to be lodged by Friday 31st March 2023.

Applications must be submitted at www.npc.org.au under the 2022 The ASG Excellence in IT Journalism Award Website Submission Form.

N.B. All applicants will receive an email confirmation that their submission has been received. Any applicant who does not receive the confirmation should contact the awards coordinator at the National Press Club.

JUDGING PANEL

The judging panel is to be determined, and the independent panel of judges will include representatives from the Media and IT sectors.

PRESENTATION

The Award will be presented at a National Press Club Address, on a date to be confirmed.

The winner will receive a cash prize to the value of $10,000 and have his or her name inscribed on the honour board permanently displayed at the National Press Club of Australia.

The principal sponsor of the Award is ASG, the professional association for Australia's Information and Communication Technology (ICT) sector.
